MERCHANTS HAVE INTERESTING MEET

There was another well attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Daly City Merchants' Association at the City Hall auditorium last Wednesday evening. All officers were present and Andrew Vireno presided.

Discussion of the use and sale of fireworks occupied the attention of the merchants for some time, and after hearing the reports of committees it was decided to let well enough alone and no definite plans for the future were made.

The proposed amendment to the peddlers' license ordinance was read to the meeting and after prolonged discussion the Association went on record as favoring the adoption of the amendement as read.

The coming widening of Mission street at Daly City was discussed at length, and the County Surveyor Geo. Kneese being unable to attend, sent Mr. Robert A. Klassen in his place, and Mr. Klassen gave very interesting data as to the progress made so far, with the drawings and surveys, the costs of widening, and the probable areas to be affected. Just where the set-back lines will run depends largely on the action of the Daly City Council, who will fix the boundaries by ordinance. The costs will probably be paid out of the state highway fund, the city of San Francisco, and the county of San Mateo.

Complaint was again made about the storage of garbage in boxes or barrels instead of metal cans with covers.

Complaint was also made about the amount of deposit required by the water department, and it was stated to be the sum of $3. This was thought to be insufficient, as many people use up water far beyond that cost and then move out, leaving the owner of the property to pay the bill. It was thought that the water should be shut off when an amount equal to the deposit was used up. This would force the tenants to pay their water bill.

Twenty-five dollars was donated to the Daly City Merchants' baseball team and $5 to pay the driver of a truck to the picnic grounds was ordered paid.

The names of R. Kramer G. Fazio, A. J. Dalton and Wilfred Rosean were added to the list of members.

The principal speakers of the evening were Robert A. Klassen, George Augustien, John J. Fahey, A. M. Harrison, J. Plansky, Peter Pavlos.

All things considered it was one of the most interesting meetings ever held by the Association, as foundations are being laid for great good to come to the people of Daly City.

WOMAN IS INJURED BY COLLIDING CARS

Eliabeth Aucuscina, of 372 Santa Barbara avenue, was standing in the safety zone on Mission street at Lawrence avenue, when two motor cars collided. The machines broke a telephone pole and came up on the safety zone, hitting the woman with terrific force, breaking her back. The injured woman was taken to the Emergency hospital. The accident occurred at 10:15 P. M., just as the audience was coming out of the State Theatre.

TWO EMPLOYEES ACCUSED OF MURDERING RANCHER

Will Woodring and E. L. Hildebrant, employees of the slain La Honda rancher whose body was found at the bottom of an abandoned well on his ranch on Friday of last week by Sheriff James J. McGrath and a squad of deputies, will face a charge of murder.

The complaint charging the two men with the rancher's murder was ordered by District Attorney Swart after he and Undersheriff John E. Farrel had spent several hours in grilling teh two.

Mrs. Minnie Roderick, widow of the murdered man, is being held as a material witness. It is claimed that she has admitted that she knew all about the killing.

SUPERVISORS DISCUSS BUDGET FOR THE COMING FISCAL YEAR

The San Mateo conty board of supervisors, meeting in regular session at the Redwood City court house last Monday, reviewed last year's financial expenditures of the county and planned for the new fiscal year, which started Tuesday. The meeting was short and was confined exclusively to the adjustment of budget delinquencies and the balancing of funds of the various roads and other districts. All departments of the county will be required to submit their financial needs to the supervisors by July 10, and the board is expected to adopt the new budget by July 20.

COLMA UNDERPASS WILL BE WIDENED

When the Colma "bottleneck" was broken by the completion of a splendid highway which permits a continuous flow of traffic, there was considerable comment as to the width of the underpass near Colma. It was promised at the time that if traffic conditions made it necessary, the underpass would be enlarged.

According to an announcement by officials of the State Highway Commission, bids for the widening and general improvement of the Colma highway underpass are to be advertised in a few days.

Widening of the underpass, one of the most important arteries from San Francisco down the peninsula, will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000.

The work will be undertaken by the Southern Pacific Company and the state, according to Colonel John H. Skeggs, district engineer of the State Highway Commission.

At present the underpass is but 66 feet wide, and forms a "bottleneck" for the highway. Improvement plans include a width of 108 feet, with two six-foot sidewalks on each side. This range will approximate the present highway width of 124 feet.

The breadth will permit two clear 42-foot roadways and eliminate a dangerous passage.

VACATION SCHOOL A GREAT SUCCESS

Grace Presbyterian church closed their vacation school on July 3, after a very successful session. Children's night was observed at the church last Sunday night at the 7:45 service, when the children portrayed the Bible stories in costume. The church was filled with a delighted audience who showed their appreciation of the program. The sublime story of King Ahasueras receiving Queen Esther was portrayed by Milton Oliotti as King and Lillian Prescott as Queen, with soldiers and maids in attendance. A more humorous portrayal was David killing Goliath. Goliath required two boys, Ulysses Cashion and Myron Alexander. A whole den of lions was portrayed by the boys and girls with William Mason, besides many other children taking part in Bible stories.

The church promises many like surprises in the future. The regular service is at 7:45. Sunday school at 10 A. M.

BRIDAL SHOWER

A bridal shower was given in honor of Miss Genevieve Raffo, of Gambetta street, on June 28, in Miss Caroline Kell's home, on Second avenue, San Francisco. The table decorations were orange and green, with a centerpiece of snapdragons, rice being spread all over the table, the effect being beautiful. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. The honored guest received many lovely and useful gifts. The guests were Mary Zipser, Frances Zipser, Katherine Oligher, Celeste Altieri, Genevive Thompson, Bernice Egan, Claire Kell, Stephanie Babras, Adele Raffo, Carolyn Kell, Genevivev Raffo, Marie Pieri, Yolanda Domenici.

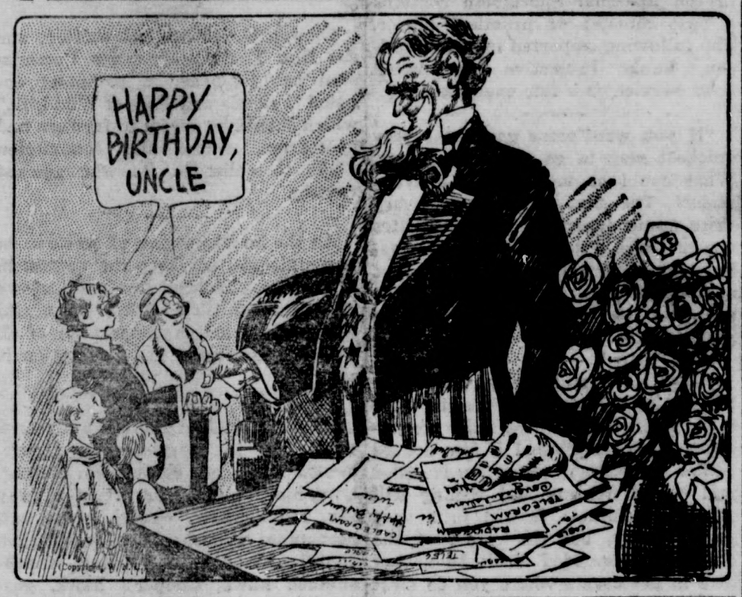
DONATI LOSES DECISION

Lester Donati, popular Daly City middleweight, dropped a 10 round decision to Al Morino, Wednesday night, at National Hall. Referee Eddie Burns' verdict did not by far meet the approval of the crowd. A great many thought the local boy should have at least received a draw. Donati won by large margin the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth rounds, scoring a knockdown in the eighth round. This was Lesters' first appearace as a main eventer. Morino's southpaw style puzzled him for five rounds, but after that he more than evened the lead Al had piled up. The fight, tabbed as the match the fans have been waiting months to see, was a thriller throughout. A packed house was on hand to witness the bout.

REDWOOD GETS CUT IN RATES

Lower power rates for the municipality of Redwood City was seen as a likelihood following the action of the State Railroad commission in ordering the Pacific Gas & Electric company to alter the manner in which it charges for power served to that city. The company was ordered to sell power to Redwood at a rate based on the total consumption, from the readings from one central meter, rather than at a rate based upon consumption of individual power users. The company was ordered also to file a schedule of rates within 60 days.

His 154th Birthday



BOLDERMAN NINE DEFEATS LOCALS

Gene Goldenson, Bolderman Chocolate pitcher, used very little assistance to defeat the Daly City Merchants 6 to 2, last Sunday, on the Jefferson high school diamond. The seasoned veteran Goldenson avenged a 7 to 3 victory administered by the local nine six weeks ago, almost single handed. In the pitching role Gene allowed but nine hits, struck out seven batters and issued nary a walk on balls. At bat he drove in three runs with a double and single.

"Specks" Fabin, Daly City chucker, displayed more ability in this game than any other. His one bad inning, the fifth, cost him four runs, and a chance for victory. Only one of the eleven hits Fabin allowed went for more than one base.

Most of the Daly City nine showed weaknesses at the plate against the smart pitching they faced. George Rettig and Sam Hawley collected three hits each to divide the batting honors. Both of these players have obtained at least one safety in the last five games.

The Merchants will not play this Sunday, nor will they appear on the local diamond in the future, unless they get more support from the local fans than they have been given in the past.

CROCKER P. T. A. AUDITING COMMITTEE MEETING

The members of Crocker P. T. A. met at the home of their president, Mrs. Ivy Alexander, of Hanover street, last Monday. The members who attended the meeting were Mrs. M. Chesney, Mrs. I. Reiman, Mrs. J. Jordan and Mrs. Alexander.

The newly elected officers are now in charge of the business affairs of the P. T. A. They officially took charge on July 1. Mrs. J. Jordan is now president of Crocker P. T. A., and her many friends wish her every success in her new honors.

EAGLE BOOSTERS MEET

On Wednesday evening of last week the booster committee of the Eagles met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Kost, on Winchester street. At the conclusion of the business meeting refreshments were enjoyed by the following: Charles Willlamson, Le Mar Johnson, Herbert Harper, Ed. Trier, William Bolger, Harry Warren, A. J. Dalton, E. Heim, William Merritt, Fred Collins, William Melbourne, B. J. Kost, A. Harper, George Connolly, Larry Shaw, C. Weise, W. A. Geren.

LEISURE HOURS GOLDEN HOURS

The old adage "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" is more true today than ever. We live in a busy world, and the earning of our daily bread is increasingly strenuous. Each day is more competitive than the day that preceded it. In this rush and bustle we are failing to take into account this human machine of our. We forget that we cannot drive at sustained speed without sooner or later breaking down. We must have a certain amount of rest and recreation. The very definition of the word —"recreation, the refreshment of mind or body after toil or weariness" —describes the need of the human mechanism for recreation—a chance to recuperate from mental or physical toil.

There is no more vital caution to be given to the members of the human family than, "Don't forget how to play." During our leisure hours we should play not only for our physical well being, but the actual pleasure and profit to be derived from play. The most successful men of today are those who have learned to play. Their habit of devoting certain hours of each week to recreation is one of the main reasons they are succcessful. They are aware of the "dollars and cents" value in increased capacity. Many business friendships are cemented in the golden leisure hours.

The type of recreation to be sought by the individual is simply the kind of recreation that brings the greatest amount of pleasure to that individual. It may be golf, baseball, swimming, the moving pictures, fishing, or some other of the hundreds of forms of recreation that are aavilable. If all of us would devote more of our leisure to real recreation we would find it profitable from every angle. We would improve our minds and bodies, and return to our labors with renewed vigor. Our pleasures of today would grow in our profits tomorrow.

Those of us living in Daly City are fortunate in the recreation facilities close at hand. Are we availing ourselves of them as we should? A full page in this issue of the Record. is devoted to the subject of play and its direct bearing on our happiness and the efficiency of our activities. Our community leaders, to whom we are indebted for its appearance, realize that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and strongly recommend a program of recreation and play for everyone.

RECORD OF PROGRESS AT SACRAMENTO FAIR

California's record of progress since its admission into the Union eighty years ago will be strikingly portrayed at the State Fair which opens in Sacramento on August 30, and continues for nine days.

The theme "Eighty Years of Progress" was selected by the directors of the exposition as typifying the advance made by the state in agriculture, horticulture, manufacturing, education and other lines of enterprise since 1850.

In addition to exhibits by fifty-four California counties, the exposition will be featured with displays from a number of western states and the Republic of Mexico. On the opening day the new State Fair livestock building will be dedicated. This is the fourth of a series of large permament structures to be erected on the fair grounds in Sacramento.

R. A. Condee of Chino, president of the exposition, predicts that the attendance at the exposition this year will pass the 500,000 total. Last year it was 431,000, a new record for the State Fair.

MOVE TO OPEN UP MILLBRAE ROAD

In an effort to open a crossing of Millbrae evenue over tracks of the Southern Pacific railroad closed at Millbrae by officials of the West Coast Porcelian Manufacturers, Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, South San Francisco, has applied to the district attorney for an opinion on whether liability insurance of the porcelian company may be assumed by the road district of the first township.

Officials of the porcelain company said the gate had been closed because of liability insurance clauses protecting employees of the company. This insurance, said Supervisor Hickey, might be taken over by the county to provide a temporary opening of the road pending decision by the rail commission.

"I would gladly agree to assume the liability insurance if a legal way is found to do so," said Supervisor Hickey. He explained that the measure is for a temporary opening of the roadway at the crossing where 300 motorists were turned back by a locked gate on the first day.

The 300 were north bound automobiles forced to turn back on their way to the Bayshore highway from El Camino Real by way of the Millbrae avenue link, it was stated by residents of Millbrae who were up in arms over the closing of the road. There were scores of additional cars stopped on the other side of the barrier when drivers attempted to use the road for reaching Millbrae from the Bayshore highway, said residents of the district.

The hearing before the state railroad commission May 20 was to determine if the crossing is a public or a private thoroughfare, said Supervisor Hickey. The matter is now pending before the commission, but if it is declared a priovate roadway, the county will take immediate steps to have the road thrown open to the public, Hickey stated.

Business men and others of Millbrae, declared that the roadway has been in use by the public for many years and that it was for years the sole entrance to the original Millbrae Villa tract, opened in 1889. The tract extended 600 feet east of the railroad and was subdivided in fifty-foot lots. For many years, according to property owners of the district, the Millbrae avenue crossing was the sole means of entrance and exit to the tract from El Camino Real, before construction of the Bayshore highway.

BANK STATEMENT SHOWS PROSPERITY

An increase of approximately two and one-half million dollars invested capital, after payment of dividends, is revealed in the half yearly statement of the Bank of Italy, published today. This confirms previous information, emanating from the financial district here, that the bank has enjoyed one of the most prosperous six months in its history.

The statement further shows a strong liquid position. Total U. S. and other securities stand at $262,030,941, up more than $1,500,000 over the June statement of a year ago. Deposits are $824,556,605, an increase of nearly $100,000,000 over last year. Of this total, savings have increased $63,000,000 and commercial accounts $57,000,000.

Evidencing the growth of international business is the gain in letters of credit and acceptances. This item last year amounted to $28,561,000, whereas this year it is over $40,000,000.

Total resources are now $988,408,939.24, as compared with $851,705,810.70 in June. 1929.

"A very satisfactory statement," was the comment of President Arnold J. Mount.

"It shows not only that the bank has made a healthy growth during a very trying economic period, but it is a good index to the prosperity of the state as well, which should be reassuring news to everyone. When people are putting their money into savings, as is very strikingly illustrated in our statement, we need not have any great fear for the future."

SHOWER FOR JULY BRIDE

A shower was tendered Miss Edith Sullivan, of Oakland, who will become the wife of John Callahan, of Salinas, July 9. Those attending were Misses Edith Sullivan and Lorraine Baucher, of Oakland, Mrs. Myrtle Jorgensen, Mrs. Janet Kape and Miss Marian Buhman, of San Francisco, Miss Lucy Glass, of Tiberon, and Misses Sylvia Evans and Drusilla Felsch, of Daly City. The evening was spent in playing whist.

THE SAN MORENA TUNNEL FAVORED

Favorable recommendation for the San Mateo trans-county highway before the State Highway Commission and the legislature was assured in enthusiastic terms on Thursday afternoon of last week, following an inspection of the "San Joaquin to the Sea" road by members of the highway committee of the Central Coast council, California State Chamber of Commerce.

Chairman Oscar L. Willett was among those most impressed with the importance of including the San Mateo-Half Moon Bay link in the coming state road program. Not only did the chairman impress listeners with his conviction for the need of the new highway to the coast, but he declared that a tunnel under the summit of the San Morena mountains is among the projects which should come in the not far distant future.

"We must be tunnel-minded after viewing the great and important project which San Mateo county offers here," said Chairman Willet in a talk at the luncheon meeting in Half Moon Bay which followed inspection of the road.

"I can assure San Mateo county of my personal feeling that the state should take the lead in proper improvement of this project," he said. "It is a necessary part of a highway system which should give our interior valleys outlet to the sea. I feel that eventually these mountains should be pierced with a tunnel that will speed transportation and lessen transportation costs into this health giving and beautiful coast region."

Others of the committee as well as San Mateo representatives declared their enthusiasm for the project. Among them were State Senator Dan E. Williams of Tuolumne county; W. F. Graham, district manager of the State Chamber of Commerce; Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, Fred H. Drake, president of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce; A. A. Caruthers, Monterey supervisor; R. A. Edwards of the State Chamber of Commerce; Fred E. Beer, president of the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce; D. A. Raybould, San Mateo member of the inspection committee; Dr. Charles L. Morgan, Half Moon Bay; E. Guy Smith, secretary of the Coastside Civic Union; Frank McVeigh, secretary of the Burlingame Chamber of Commerce, and Mayor C. A. Buck, Burlingame.

FAREWELL PARTY IN HONOR OF THE REHBOCK FAMILY

A farewell party was given Mr. and Mrs. C. Rehbock, Sr., and family, of Wilson avenue, on Wednesday night of last week by a group of their most intimate friends. The Relief Society of the L. D. S. presented Mrs. Rehbock with suitable gifts in recognition of her services in behalf of the children. The evening was spent in playing old-fashioned indoor games, and all threw their cares and worries away for the evening. Delicious refreshments were enjoyed by all present. There were fifty guests and friends present, who joined in wishing the couple and their family success in their new venture and lots of happiness in their new home at Santa Rosa.

HAWLEY AND RETTIG INCREASE AVERAGES

Sam Hawley and George Rettig collected two-thirds of the Merchants' nine hits Sunday, showing a big increase in their batting averages. Both of the local players decreased the 13.3 per cent advantage held by Ahrens last week. Del garnered one for four to hold the lead with .435. Hawley now occupies second place, rising from ninth position in five weeks.

The players' percentages are:

	AB.	H.	Pct.
Ahrens	46	20	.435
Hawley	36	13	.361
Rettig	51	18	.353

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

The so-called game restoration program advocated by Arthur L. Clark in the National Sportsman contains a vast amount of practical advice. The following, reported in the American Game Protective Association news service, is a fair example:

"If you want more game, the very quickest way to ge it is to raise it. What could be more direct and obvious? The fact that nearly every state game department now operates one or more game farms, or at least buys game for restocking, shows that sportsmen generally appreciate the necessity of raising and liberating game to restock their covers.

"There are still many who labor under the delusion that having paid their license fee, joined some organization and contributed a few dollars to the cause, their obligation is ended and better hunting and fishing will result. Doubtless it will in a very general way, but the effect of the dollars so expended won't be noticeable in the covers where you do most of your hunting.

"A license fee of $3, for example, would buy only one bird, even if it could be spent wholly for that purpose. Your contribution to the cause won't effect your own sport materially. The point is that having discharged these obligations as you see them, or as required by law, you still have your own interests to look out for.

"Every dollar that you spend in improving conditions in your home covers under supervision will return a direct benefit to you of many times its original value. You are not particularly interested in the conditions in some distant place.

"A certain amount of philanthropy is laudable, but after all, if you will work and spend some money to improve conditions in your locality, and if the sportsmen in every other locality would do the same, each one acting as the game breeder and gamekeeper for some favorite cover, the whole problem would be solved and lots of waste effort would be avoided."

Clinton G. Abbott has written, and the New York Conservation Commission has published a pamphlet entitled "Friends and Foes of Wild Life," which should be useful to farmers and sportsmen, whom the commission seeks to enlist in its war against vermin.

As the small number of wardens in any state can not keep the vermin in a large area reduced to a point where it will have little effect on useful wild life, the active co-operation of all who are interested in conservation is sought.

In this pamphlet there are nineteen names on the conservation department's black-list, as follows: Bobcat, lynx, hunting house cat, red fox, gray fox, red squirrel, weasel, house cat, porcupine, woodchuck, crow, English sparrow, European starling, sharpshinned hawk, Cooper's hawk, goshawk, great horned owl, great gray owl, and snowy owl. In Mr. Abbott's opinion, the worst offenders in this list are the red fox, the gray fox, the red squirrel, the crow, the great horned owl, and the common domestic cat.

Game protectors, forest rangers, and experienced sportsmen generally agree in the conclusion that foxes, hawks and house cats are chiefly responsible for the scarcity of partridges in many states; that hunting cats, when their number are considered, are the most dangerous destructive force with which game and insectivorous birds have to contend.

Pennsylvania's game commission has branded the crow as the leader of all vermin. The great horned owl destroys partridges and other game birds, rabbits, poultry and insectivorous birds. The English sparrow and the starling, not properly classified as vermin, are given a place in the list as nuisances.

PROTECTION AGAINST GRADE CROSSING HAZARDS FEATURE IN SAFETY DRIVE

Hazards of railway grade crossings and safety of strict observance of signals at such points will be featured this month by the California Committee on Public Safety in its state wide traffic safety educational campaign conducted in co-operation with state and local traffic law enforcement agencies. As part of its all-year educational and enforcement program, stressing one common traffic hazard each month, the committee will emphasize during July the importance of watching for grade crossing signals and the law covering stops for common carrier buses, school buses and trucks carrying explosives or inflamable liquids.

During the first part of the month, motorists throughout the state will be educated to the necesity of caution at grade crosings through news articles, radio talks, theatre slides and talks before service clubs. State traffic police of the California Highway Patrol and police departments of principal cities, who are cooperating with the committee in this continuous safety campaign, will begin strict enforcement of the law in respect to grade crossings as soon as the educational period is ended about the middle of July.

It is considered that this campaign is most timely for July in view of the great increase in traffic, both rail and automobile, during the summer vacation period. Officials express the hope that stressing the hazards of grade crosings may result in the prevention of many accidents during the height of the summer touring season.

"Obey Grade Crossing Signals for Your Protection" is the slogan for July which will be broadcast throughout the state by the committee and its co-operating agencies, the street car companies, bus lines and other groups.

Co-operating in the campaign, the legal departement of the California State Automobile Association summarizes the provisions of the state law on observance of railway warning signals as follows:

Where a signal is given by a flagman or automatic signals of approach of a train, the driver must stop the motor vehicle between ten and fifty feet of the train tracks. Violation of this section is a misdemeanor. (Section 114, California Vehicle Act.)

Operators of motor vehicles carrying passengers for hire, school buses, or motor trucks carrying explosives or inflamable liquids as a cargo or part of a cargo shall stop before crossing the tracks at grade of a steam railroad or interurban or suburban electric railrway. The stop must be made between ten and fifty feet of the tracks and the driver must look and listen in both directions. This does not apply to crossings protected by flagmen on duty of gates or automatic signals. Violation of this section is a misdemeanor. (Section 135, California Vehicle Act.)

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

Eureka will make an attempt to win the next convention of the county surveyors of California.

Approval of the new Humboldt County hospital was given by the board of supervisors recently.

The Humboldt County Young Men's Christian Association opened its annual summer camp at Redway, with C. E. Morrow, secretary, in charge.

Closed 40 years, the once famous Cherokee quartz mine at Angels Camp will be re-opened. It has been taken over by L. Munson, who has started a crew cleaning out the old shaft.

James C. McGeehon of Walnut Creek has been awarded the contract to raze the old Livermore high school building. After the removal of the building the ground will be sold by the school board.

There is no need for Porterville residents to walk if they prefer to ride. Figures just released at the office of the city clerk list 2,484 motor cars for a population of 5,367, virtually one car for every two residents.

In its program of keeping down dust on heavily traveled highways the State Department of Public Works has awarded contracts for oiling nearly forty miles of road in San Luis Obispo, Sonoma and Mendocino counties.

Work of remodeling the Vallejo Theater is under way, under the supervision of L. S. Hicks, Vallejo contractor. The Fox West Coast Theaters intend to spend in the neighborhood of $13,300 in the rebuilding of the structure, which was destroyed by fire during the early spring.

The Jackson-Markeville road over Carson Pass, Alpine County, at an elevation of 8,600 feet has been opened to traffic according to the state division of highways. In view of the heavy late snows, this was considered an early opening. The road will be left open on Saturday nights and Sundays.

Trout planting of the many mountain streams in Santa Cruz County has started and 10,000 trout from the Brookdale hatchery were planted in Mill Creek recently. About 300,000 good sized trout are in the hatcheries at Big Creek and Brookdale and will all be planted soon with the help of sportsmen's organizations.

Wild horses, increasing to such numbers in the Modoc National Forest that they have become a menace to domestic stock, faced an inglorious end. They are being rounded up by riders under the direction of F. H. Huffman, manager of the SX ranch, and many of them will be shipped to Petaluma where they will be served as chicken food. Some of the best animals in the wild herds will be claimed. Many are advertised for sale under the state estray law.

California was $5,000,000 poorer today as the result of a State Supreme Court decision. The court ruled that the Southern Pacific's lines in Alameda County are street and interurban lines and can not be taxed by the state on the basis of their being part of the steam railroad system. Under the 1921 King tax bill, the tax on steam roads is 7 per cent of gross earnings, while the tax on street railways is only 5¼ per cent. The difference in the tax amounts to $5,000,000, which the company has not paid.

For the first time in trout hatching operations by the state of California, Tulare County fish are furnishing their own eggs for the purpose. Half a million rainbow trout eggs will have been taken from 895 fine specimens trapped in Hamilton Lake as the result of co-operation between the national park service and the State Fish and Game Commission. Thus far 65,000 eggs have been taken for hatching at the state hatchery east of Visalia.

The phrase, "streets of gold" has a literal meaning when applied to Nevada City. During excavation for the erection of a power pole at the main junction of streets in the business section, a highly mineralized quartz ledge was uncovered by workmen. Free gold was found in the rock and only the fact that the "strike" is located in the town's main street kept miners from locating the claim. The power company in installing a new set of poles along the business section have been experiencing much difficulty with rock. Blasting has been resorted to at this particular point. It was thought that they had encountered a large boulder but the striking of high grade ore shows that they are in the bed rock and have tapped the old Nevada County ledge.

G. E. Wood, one of two full-time members of the Coalinga volunteer fire department, has been placed in charge of all fire apparatus by order of the City Council. The order followed a controversy which arose when the fire apparatus became disabled en route to a fire recently.

A five girl track team will represent Eureka at the national girls' track and field meet at Boston, Mass., in July. Funds have been offered by Eureka business men. Miss Bessie Marshall is coach of the team.

The Santa Cruz Commercial Fishermen's Association started the first move to ban commercial seining of sardines on the Santa Cruz side of the bay and are working to establish a reserve so that the fish that follow sardines for feed, such as yellow tail, skipjack, tuna and albacore, will be more plentiful.

Several positions as physicians and psychiatrist at the State Hospitals for the Insane are not only unfilled but practically without applicants, according to report made by the State Civil Service Commission. Physicians at these hospitals, it is pointed out, receive salaries ranging from $170 to $270 a month, with full maintenance for the physician.

Turlock's prisoners will now have to work for their board and lodging in the city jail. The city council has adopted a plan making it necessary for all prisoners to work on city projects. In addition to cutting down bills for maintenance of the jail, the plan will benefit the city treasury by fewer expenditures for municipal improvements, councilmen pointed out.

The United States destroyer Hazelwood, used for the training of Bay District naval reserve officers and sailors for the last five years, is to be decommissioned. Twelfth Naval District headquarters announced the Hazelwood will be scrapped at San Pedro. The U. S. S. Lamberton has been selected to relieve the Hazelwood, and will be overhauled and reconditioned.

Application for diversion of water from Fall Creek and South Fork Fall Creek, Nevada County, for irrigation and power purposes, is on file with the state division of water rights. The proposed water project calls for construction of a concrete dam, 20 feet high and 150 feet long; construction of a 22,000-foot concrete conduit costing $450,000, and diversion of 20 cubic feet of water per second for irrigation of 167,789 acres of general crops land.

Further procedure in the formation of an improvement district in Delhi land settlement colony has been taken by directors of the Turlock irrigation district. The action came with a final checkup of petitions asking for the district. Engineers were authorized to report later on the feasibility of the proposed project. The proposed district comprises 6,142 acres, 26 pumping plants and 100 miles of underground cement pipe lines, in addition to 90 miles of privately owned pipe lines.

To preserve state parks as nearly as possible in their natural state, while providing necessary highway facilities, the state division of highways is making a study of road construction in scenic areas with a view to reducing to a minimum the temporary disfigurement of the landscape during highway construction. This was announced following a conference at Sacramento between officials of the division of highways and the division of parks. In the Redwood highway many changes of highway alignment have been made to avoid destruction of trees. New cuts and fills are to be improved by replanting native vegetation.

California's water replenishment from snow and rainfall during the last winter was shown to have been below normal in all parts of the state except in a small area surrounding San Diego, in a survey just completed by State Engineer Edward Hyatt at Sacramento as a part of the statewide water resources survey. The greatest deficiency occurred in the north coast area, which was declared to be adequately moist nevertheless, and in the southern part of the San Joaquin Valley, where, on the other hand, a shortage is always a serious matter. A striking feature of the wet season as shown by the study was that the rainfall and snowfall after December 1 was practically normal in the Sacramento Valley, the northern San Joaquin Valley, the Sierra and the central and southern coastal regions. Very little rain fell anywhere in the state before that date.

With summer here and the great danger of forest fires, the United States Forest Service has completed arrangements for an airplane forest patrol. Two planes of the Associated Airways Ltd. have been engaged for patrol in northern California. These planes will not operate on regular beats but will be used for scouting. Following electrical storms and during periods of smoke and haze when visibility on the ground is poor, the planes will be used to search for fires. The planes will be used to scout large fires, and the observers will drop parachute messages to the fire fighters telling wind direction, speed of the fire and the best points to concentrate the fighters. Similar service will be provided for the forest patrol in southern California. With increasing fire hazards due to hot weather and lack of rain, the thirteen national forests in the state have been closed to smoking. Smoking will be permitted only at designated spots in the forests.

Hereafter there will not be any more burial permits issued for interments at the Carquinez cemetery on Sundays, according to action taken by the city council.

William L. Williams, who has had his headquarters at Red Bluff and at Mineral for 13 years as district ranger in the Lassen National Forest, has been promoted to district ranger of the Klamath National Forest, with headquarters at Yreka. W. J. Brokenshire will become district ranger in the Lassen forest.

MONTICELLO, THE HOME OF THOMAS JEFFERSON

By Agnes MacCarthy Hickey

America's heritage! Your hallowed shrine,
Where we may come and be more close to you
In spirit, here among the things you knew
And loved! . . . What privilege to learn how fine
And sacred are the forces that combine
To bless a nation! . . . Nobly here you grew
Grave in the wisdom that gave breadth to view
Our Country's need . . . which you were to divine.
This house enfolded you, these walls, though now
All silent, once laughed out with you in play.
This house confirms our love and these great trees
Like your high thoughts still brush the sky. Just how
These broadening vistas vied to mould your day
We know by your immortal legacies!

No Death for Great Pioneer of Democracy

The anniversarian, in looking back over the historical record of the nation, finds many things of interest, many by-paths, and many once main-traveled roads now grown dim, leading off into pleasurable speculation and reminiscence. But in connection with the anniversary of the nation's birth, there is a notable coincidence. On a July 4, 1826, two ex-Presidents of the United States died; they were of the fathers whose patriotic labors "brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal." They had lived to see the light of the jubilee day and then passed from the stage. John Adams died that day in Quincy, Mass.; Thomas Jefferson at Monticello in Virginia.

Aside from the coincidence of their death on July 4, their lives had many parallels. Both were leaders in the Continental congress; both were signers of the Declaration; both were ministers abroad; both served as Vice President, and both as President of the United States. Each served in the constitutional convention of his native state. Jefferson fathered the Democratic-Republican party; Adams, with Alexander Hamilton, the Federalist party. Adams, while abroad, wrote and published for the instruction of Europe his "Defense of the American Constitutions," Jefferson his "Notes on Virginia."

"Thomas Jefferson still survives." History has handed down to us those words as the last that were spoken by John Adams. Let them be our text on the one hundred and fourth anniversary of the death of the two men.

At the approach of the semicentenary of the Declaration of Independence in 1826 the American people turned their eyes and thoughts to two aged fellow-citizens: Jefferson, the author of the Declaration, and Adams, whom Jefferson himself had variously described as "the pillar of its support on the floor of congress," "its ablest advocate and defender," "our colossus," "our bulwark in debate." The first had turned eighty-three, and the latter was more than half way along in his ninety-first year. Although it was well known that both were too feeble to be included in the plans which were forming for the public celebration of that specially glorious Fourth, they were present and uppermost in every mind, and the country looked with a certain awe upon those two living witnesses to the nation's birth, those spared monuments of an historic past.

Politics had divided and bitterly estranged the pair, but in their retirement from the political arena they had become reconciled and had returned to their early esteem for each other, when they labored together for a common end. "I always loved Jefferson," said Adams, and of Adams, Jefferson said only two years before he died: "Fortune had disjoined our affections, but we re-embraced with cordiality, recalled our ancient feelings and dispositions and everything was forgotten but our first sympathies."

Adams' Last Words.

Five days before that fiftieth birthday of the nation, Adams was visited by a fellow-townsman in Quincy and invited to join in the celebration of the day. It was plain to be seen that the nonagenarian could not accept the invitation, but instead he gave his caller this toast for the occasion:

"Independence Forever!"

The Fourth came. While millions of his countrymen were commemorating the day, "with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations," as Adams himself had prescribed on the first Fourth, 50 years before, and while the people of Quincy still lingered at the banquet table, where they had drunk his toast, their illustrious neighbor sank to rest from his long and troubled life as the sun went down behind the Blue hills. It was under those circumstances that he said, as the watchers by his bedside understood his last audible words, "Thomas Jefferson still survives."

Jefferson's Last Hours.

Jefferson really had lost that final race with his friend of half a century. For he had died near 1:00 o'clock, some six hours earlier. As his life ebbed his last thoughts also were of the Fourth. The evening before, on coming out of a stupor, he inquired:

"Is it the Fourth?"

"It soon will be," the doctor replied.

At 11 o'clock that night he rallied again and whispered inquiringly: "This is the Fourth?"

His grandson-in-law nodded a white lie and was rewarded by a sigh of satisfaction, "Ah!"

Soon the mind of the sage wandered off to the stirring period of the first Fourth. Sitting up in bed, he went through the motions of writing, and he was heard to mutter that the Committee of Safety should be warned. A rebel and revolutionary to the last!

Conservative-Progressive.

John Adams erred in a small way, but spoke the larger truth, when he said: "Thomas Jefferson still survives." He survives even unto this day, when the country marks the one hundred and fifty-fourth anniversary of the Declaration and the one hundred and fourth of its author's death. His survival is explained by the last letter he wrote on the subject of the Declaration ten deays before he died:

"May it be to the world, what I believe it to be (to some parts sooner, to others later, and finally to all) the signal of arousing men to burst their chains, under which ignorance and superstition had persuaded them to bind themselves, and to assume the blessings and security of self-government. . . . All eyes are opened or are opening to the rights of man. The general spread of the light of science has already laid open to every view the palpable truth that the mass of mankind have not been born with saddles on their backs, nor a favored few booted and spurred ready to ride them legitimately, by the grace of God."

Contrast in Characters.

Fifty years had not rusted the pen of '76. Contrast that sentiment, which the author of the Declaration offered for his last Fourth, with Adams' toast, and we find the key to the secret of Jefferson's survival. To one, the day commemorated a fight that was ended and a local fight at that . . . for American independence. Thus, the conservative holding to the past. To the other, the fight had only begun, and it would go on until "the mass of mankind" had won independence, had "burst their chains" and the whole world had achieved "self-government." Thus the progressive, looking to the future.

Jefferson believed, as strongly as Hamilton, in the rule of an aristocracy, but of a real aristocracy. And right here is where democracy has failed him most often, in its proneness to accept the rule of mediocrity. In letters to Adams, he set forth his views on this subject:

"Nature has wisely provided an aristocracy of virtue and talent for the direction of the interests of society, and SCATTERED IT WITH EQUAL HAND THROUGH ALL ITS CONDITIONS. . . . There is also an artificial aristocracy, founded on wealth and birth, without either virtue or talent. . . . May we not even say that the form of government is the best which provides the most effectually for the pure selection of these natural ariosto into the offices? . . . In general, they (the people) will elect the really good and wise. . . . It suffices for us, if the moral and physical condition of our own citizens qualifies them to select the able and the good for the direction of their government."

Had Faith in People.

Does not the mere restatement of that high hope of the father of American democracy sound to us like biting irony, a bitter satire? The capacity of the people to choose the best is the keystone in the arch of the democratic system. How often do we fail to live up to Jefferson's belief in us! Yet the basis of his political philosophy was his trust in the people, and the whole of his philosophy may be summarized in a few words chosen from his writing:

"The will of the majority, the natural law of every society, is the only sure guardian of the rights of man. Perhaps even this may sometimes err, but its errors are honest, solitary and short lived."

People Responded.

Jefferson was the first responsible political leader anywhere to hazard a transfer of government from its ancient base, on the shoulders of the privileged few, to the broader base of a people's will. It is difficult for us to imagine now how hazardous it was for that political pioneer to stake all his ambitions upon an appeal to the yet untrained, inexperienced, inarticulate, inert mass; to trust them to respond to ideas and ideals, and without the stimulus of bands and torches. It was a bold act of faith, and the people justified it by following his leadership for 25 years as they never have followed another.

Perhaps the people would meet that test as well now, if another Jefferson should pay them the compliment of so great a trust in their common sense.—James Morgan, in the Boston Sunday Globe.

LION AND LIONESS

"Well," said the Lioness, "I said to the people who passed by, 'Look at me!' It was a command, not an invitation. An invitation is a silly thing.

"It's too polite, not wild enough. I didn't know that anyone wanted to look at me, and I didn't care.

"I wasn't going to invite people to gaze upon me and my queenly beauty.

"I was going to command them to do so."

"How could you have commanded them?" asked King Lion. "I think people like to look at me and my handsome full-grown mane. Ah, what a beautiful thing a mane is. You, poor Lioness, haven't such a beautiful possession."

"You needn't pity me, for I am not envious of you."

"Indeed," said King Lion haughtily, and in a tone as if he didn't believe her in the least.

"No, I am not envious of you," said the Lioness. "If I haven't a mane I have at least a wild nature. I'm wilder than you are, far, far, wilder.

"I've more character, in short. I am a regular lion—or a regular lioness.

"I am a wild beast.

"Ah, that sounds so wonderfully to me, a wild beast!"

"Something to brag about, no doubt," said King Lion, who was feeling sleepy and not in the last bit wild.

"It don't matter," said the Lioness, "whether I am here in the zoo, or far out in the jungles, I always take the lead in wildness."

"You told me you could command the people to look at you," said King Lion.

"I don't see that people who are passing by are looking at you. They're stopping and gazing at me, and at my handsome mane."

"You Needn't Pity Me."

"I said," the Lioness answered, "that I could command them to look at me, and I can, too."

"Let's see you do it," said King Lion. "And do it quickly, for, if not, I'll take a nap.

"I don't believe you can command the people in the zoo.

"You want to pretend to me that you can, and then pretend that you have succeeded in doing it when I was asleep and when I really wouldn't know if you were telling the truth or not."

"I am truthful," said the Lioness, "yes, I am a truthful beast. And I don't wish to be insulted by a creature weaker than myself, King Lion.

"I hope you understand that I mean yourself!"

"I understand," said King Lion.

"Now, watch me," said the Lioness. "I've no intention of waiting for you to go to sleep before I prove to you my great power."

And with that the lioness roared, such a roaring and roaring that all the people gathered in front of her cage.

"I command you to look at me!" she was roaring.

"I command you to gaze upon my wildness so as to show old King Lion that people will be my bidding."

And as they looked at her, they all said to one another:

"What wild eyes she has. Truly, she looks far wilder than the King Lion.

"How awful it would be to meet her in the jungle."

"There," she roared to King Lion, "can't I command the people to look at me?"

"Indeed you can, wild Lioness," said King Lion, and she smiled at what she thought was a great compliment.

Jumping to It

The two school boys were discussing their athletic prowess.

"How high can you jump?" asked one.

"Just over four feet," explained the other. "What can you do?"

"Five feet," his friend promptly replied. "How about the long jump?"

"Just about ten feet," said the first. "What can you do?"

"Eleven easily," was the reply. "What's your time for the half-mile?"

By now the other was a little suspicious.

"Five seconds better than yours," he said.

THE IMMORTAL FIFTY-SIX

Fifty-six members of the Continental Congress signed the Declaration of Independence after its adoption on July 4, 1776, and of those daring patriots it has been said that "not one of the signers ever fell from the high estate to which that great act had elevated him."

Among the 56 were many of the notable figures of the early history of the United States. Two of them, Adams and Jefferson, reached the presidency. Benjamin Harrison became the father of one President and the great-grandfather of another. The bold signature of John Hancock, who signed first as President of the Congress, is the most conspicuous feature of the original document. Other exceptionally prominent signers were Benjamin Franklin, Robert Morris, Dr. Benjamin Rush, Samuel Adams, Richard Henry Lee, and Charles Carroll. Carroll was the last survivor and lived 60 years after the adoption of the Declaration, reaching the age of 96.

The signers included 34 lawyers, 13 farmers, nine merchants, five physicians, two mechanics, one clergyman, one mason and one surveyor. All except eight were born on American soil.

To the wisdom, courage and patriotism of these immortal 56, who declared our independence and made heroic sacrifices in its behalf, the existence of the nation is largely due. They will ever be held in grateful remembrance.

SPEED KING'S DEATH

Admirers of daredevil speed enthusiasts will keely regret the tragic death of Major Sir Henry O. Segrave, who died from injuries received when he was thrown from his speedboat, which overturned on Lake Lindemere, England, on his unlucky Friday, the 13th, while making more than 100 miles an hour.

Major Segrave was 34 years old and his life had been filled with adventure. As an aviator during the World war he was shot down by the Germans, but survived. On March 11, 1929, he drove an automobile 231 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, Florida, setting a record that still stands, and for which he was knighted by King George.

On the day of his death he attained a speedboat record of 101 miles an hour, beating the former world's record of 93 miles, held by Gar Wood of Detroit. Not satisfied, he made another attempt for still greater speed, and in this effort he lost his life.

The consummate grit of Major Segrave was illustrated in his last moments. When taken from the water with both arms broken and his lung punctured by a fractured rib, he asked if his two mechanics were safe, then lapsed into coma and died. It happened that one mechanic had been drowned, while the other was saved, although suffering from a broken thigh and other injuries.

While we may question the soundness of a speed demon's judgment, his reckless daring can not fail to excite our admiration.

Abe Buzzard, 68-year-old Pennsylvanian, has spent 42 of his years in jail for stealing chickens. Between jail terms he is an evangelist. Another neat little problem for the psychologists.

Western Electric SOUND SYSTEM — THE VOICE OF ACTION

A LEADING FIRE CAUSE

Misuse of electricity and electric appliances ranks high in the list of fire causes. It results in an annual loss of approximately $114,000,000 in this country.

"Handy-man installations and extensions may be found in hundreds of thousands of homes where they are a constant menace to life and property. It is a common practice to add unsafe lengths of lamp cord and to loop extensions around nails or other metal projections.

Blown fuses, instead of being replaced, are doctored and made to work, in spite of the fact that they are no longer fuseable. During inspections in one city recently a bushel basket of pennies which had been used to supplement blown fuses, was collected.

Even the best of wiring wears out in time. Unless it is replaced by a capable electrician it presents a dangerous hazard.

Most cities now have examinations of buildings and property in order to remove hazards. However, these occur only at long intervals. The solution of the problem is up to the public. When it permits amateur installation of electric appliances and fails to replace old equipment, it is unconsciously courting destruction.

COLD GERM IS FOUND

The long-sough germ which causes the common cold has been found at last, according to the claim of Dr. Pfeiffer of the Maryland University School of Medicine, who has been on the trail of the elusive pest for seven years.

What is still more important, if it proves true, is that he has developed a vaccine which destroys the germ and thus cures the cold in short order. Dr. Pfeiffer's method will be further tested by physicians of Johns Hopkins, and the results are awaited with interest.

The importance of such a discovery can be understood by everyone, because few persons are exempt from the discomfort and often serious consequences which result from merely "catching cold." It is estimated that the value of time lost from work in American industry on account of common colds is not less than two billion dollars a year.

So, if Dr. Pfeiffer has really found a scientific method of preventing this suffering and waste, he will be entitled to high rank among the benefactors of mankind.

GIVE NERVES A REST

In a recent statement to the press, a well-known New York doctor called attention to the fact that while science has made great strides toward the abolition of diseases combated for hundreds of years, a new series of ailments are arising to take their places.

Most of these ailments, he declares, are directly traceable to the fast pace of modern business and modern living. Thousands of human beings are ruining their health in the battle for the dollar, or as some call it, "the battle for recognition." People work and rush to the verge of exhaustion; then alcohol, coffee, tea or other stimulants are resorted to, resulting in neurosis, an ailment of the nervous system, Some advice in this connection is quoted:

"In such cases medicine is of little avail. What is needed is to give one's nerves a vacation, through periods of rest and relaxation, even during business hours. Artificial stimulants should be avoided or reduced to a minimum. Coffee from which the caffein has been removed by scientific means is recommended. More time spent in the garden, on the golf links, or in boating and fishing, will yield returns in health and vigor."

While these suggestions apply with particular force to those men and women whose business and social duties are extremely exacting, they hould much sound advice for all who find themselves inclined to disregard the fundamental laws of health by overtaxing their physical and mental nerves.

MILLIONS FOR COMMUNICATION

During 1930 it is estimated that the telephone industry will spend $106,000,000 for extending long distance facilities. The program requires the construction of about 3,000 miles of cable.

Amazing progress in long distance telephone communication has been made since 1915 when contact between San Francisco and New York was first established. Twenty-five foreign countries can now be reached by telephone from the United States and approximately 85 per cent of the world's telephones can be interconnected. In a few minutes and at a reasonable cost we can speak to a person in the next town or in another hemisphere.

The auditing firm of Wenzelburger & Vickery, of 315 Montgomery street, San Francisco, started the work of auditing the books of the City of Daly City last Wednesday. The work began in the Municipal Water Co., under the able guidance of T. Vickery and his assistants. The work is done annually at about this time each year.

NEW ELECTRIC CROSS ON CALVARY BAPTIST CHAPEL

Calvary Baptist Chapel is rejoicing over the addition of its new electric cross which now distributes its rays from the top of the Chapel building. The lumber for the making of this cross is the gift of the A. L. Stockton Lumber Company, Daly City.

The following will be the services at Calvary Baptist Chapel, 5724 Mission street, next Sunday: In the mornin, "The Seven Stars;" in the evening, "The Reality of God."

The film "Pirates of the Sky" will be shown at 9:45 Sunday morning. The reel deals with storks and nests. Mallard in nest. Egret. Eagles on watch for prey. Bald or American eagle. Nest and young. Goshawk. Falcon. Vulture or condor. Slow motion of flights. Owls.

At 6:30 Sunday night four unusual reels will be shown. The pictures will be in keeping with the commemoration of the Fourth of July. The first reel will be the life of Thomas Jefferson.

The major feature will be three reels titled "The Declaration of Independence." This motion picture is considered a very rare piece of historical work in the field of cinema. It deals with the efforts of a small group of patriots who bring about a unanimous vote in favor of independence. Public opinion in 1776, as represented by Tories, Conservatives, and those in favor of absolute independence. The influence of pamphleteers, typified by Thomas Paine and his "Common Sense," the unofficial gatherings of delegates, the concern of John Adams, Franklin and others as to the attitude of France, the proceedings of the Second Continental Congress culminating in the famous session of July 2, 1776, when a unanimous resolution for independence was secured. The formal adoption of the Declaration on July 4th, and the subsequent excitement.

Every boy and girl, mother and father should see these reels. They are educational beyond description. There is no admission charge to see these films; only a free-will offering will be taken to help defray expenses.

A splendid B. Y. P. U. program is to follow the showing of these patriotic films.

ANOTHER DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

We learn of an interesting item carried in the newspapers on November 14, 1929, from Paris. It stated that the body of Caruso has rested in a crypt in Canessa Tomb since his death in 1921. Visitors are granted permission to view the remains through the covering of the casket.

"Caruso's closet friends have decided that every three years they will reopen the casket and change the clothing, keeping his remains constantly dressed in the latest fashions as long as the embalming maintains the perfect state of the body" according to the statement of Schipa.

The body may be dressed "in the latest fashion" but it still remains a dead body.

Death is sure; it eventually closes in on all of us. To the Romans death was the end of sensation and pleasure. A skeleton was not infrequently introduced among the guests of festive parties, with the exhortation: "Let us enjoy life while we may." In the same manner would the Eygptians bring in a coffin containing probably the embalmed remains of some ancestor of the family. This was presented to each guest with the words: "Look upon this and be merry, for such as this, when dead shalt thou be." What conceptions of life! What conceptions of death! Death to the Christian is the place at which the little stream of life merges into the ocean of eternity. Death to him is but the turning-point in the endless path of existence. Or, as one has written:

"Death is but a path that must be trod
If man would ever pass to God"

But many, like the Romans or the Egyptians, think that there is nothing beyond the grave; the grave ends all! This belief belongs to Paganism and Materialism, while the keynote of Christianity rests upon the Resurrection—the immortality of the soul. The soul of man was never built to remain upon the earth or in the grave. Probably the story of the landsman, who had never seen the sea or a boat, will help us to get a better conception of the migration of the soul. The landsman in this story was for the first time visiting a shipyard where a ship, just completed, was in the stocks. Looking at it in wonder he said, "What a strange house, with its floor on top and its roof on the bottom." (Remember he had never seen a ship before.) After a moment's reflection, he exclaimed, "That thing was never built to stay here." When on launching day he saw it glide into its natural element, he said, "I told you so." In like manner, we repeat, the soul of man was never built to stay here.

As we celebrate our national Independence day each Fourth of July, in the same manner do we recall our Eternal Independence from the sting of death when we read the words of Jesus Christ: "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

America's perplexing corn surplus problem may be solved by the manufacture of corn sugar, which is now growing in popularity, according to Dr. H. E. Some other devotees of applied chemistry are using quite a bit of the aforesaid surplus in making a potent liquid product which appears to be in rather steady demand.

Nashville has apperently changed its attitude, but in just what direction is somewhat obscure, at least so far as may be gathered from the opening paragraph of a dispatch, which reads: "Nashville has dropped from one of the worst dope peddling centers to the second cleanest in the United States." At first glance it would seem that Nashville had defied gravity by dropping upward.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Golden Hours

Leisure Hours Are Indeed Golden Hours

After the day's work is over each and every one of us should dedicate the few hours that follow to securing for ourselves our share of the joy of living.

It is our duty to ourselves, our families, and our work that these hours should be happy hours so that we may return to our labors with our mind refreshed, our physical being rejuvenated and our energy restored. The pleasure of our leisure hours will be carried back to our daily tasks and we will be able to accomplish greater things in the work to do.

Amusement—recreation—play, these activities are of utmost importance to the community.

There is no formula that can be given to all for securing the greatest pleasure and happiness during these golden hours. The many differences in mankind forestall the possibility of finding a recipe for happiness and joy.

Each man, woman and child in this community should spend these leisure hours doing things that give them the greatest pleasure. Usually the happiest families are those who secure their pleasure together.

While a universal recommendation cannot be given for making the most of "play-time," it is very simple to ascertain where the greatest number of people find their amusements and pleasure.

One of the greatest boons to happiness and health has been the automobile. Did you ever stop to realize how much pleasure and amusement has been derived from the twenty-four million motor cars that glide along the American highways? Are you using your car to increase the joy for yourself, your family and your friends during the "golden hours?"

Another marvel of the century that has spread joy throughout the world, and has brought happiness even into the out-of-the-way places, has been the moving pictures. Over twenty million people every day enrich their golden hours by enjoying moving pictures.

Important commercial recreation facilities—school halls, dance halls, theatres, skating rinks, bowling alleys, amusement parks, baseball parks, have each become a part of any well-ordered community.

National institutions such as the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A., the Boy Scouts, and the Camp Fire Girls, because of their valuable contribution to the golden hours of leisure are coming to be a part of the up-to-date community. They should be fostered and enjoyed by all.

Remember, the community must furnish most of the amusements, recreation and pleasure so that its people will get more joy out of life. Recreation through schools, playgrounds and parks is an important step toward a happier, healthier, more contented city.

There is no better index to the prosperity, intelligence, and character of our town than the manner in which we spend our leisure hours. We should all support our recreation facilities, our sports and our amusements. Not only will it improve the golden hours, but it will also attract others to come and abide with us in

WITH OUR WOMEN

Miss Mary G. Lacy of the Department of Agriculture of Washington has compiled an index of developments in agriculture from 400 B. C. to the present.

Dr Mary Eddy, a well-known missionary, was the first woman ever licensed to practice medicine in Turkey.

Bobbed-haired women in Zerbau, Silasia, are subject to special municipal tax.

Miss Gladys A. Taylor will take charge of the passenger traffic advertising of one of the largest steamship lines operating from New York.

Miss Mary Duff of Lawrenceville, Ill., won the Rea gold medal as the outstanding 1930 graduate of the Army School of Nursing.

Miss Marion Huntson has held the position of desk sergeant of the Lake Forest, Ill., police department for the last three years.

Lady Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne of Danville, Va., has been honored by her home town, which has named one of its principal throughfares Lady Astor street. Mrs Astor was the first woman to win a seat in the English parliment.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover has been awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature by Elmira College, Elmira, N. Y.

Miss Thorstina Jackson, a graduate of the University of Manitoba, was decorated by the king of Denmark for her historical works dealing with the people of Iceland.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Eva Byron, 14 years old, of Boulder, Colo., has entered the University of Colorado as a regularly registered student.

Claire Pinlozik, 15-year-old high school student of Newark, N. J., is learning to be a professional boxer.

Aram Abgarian, 15 years old, of Detroit, Mich., who built a model airplane which remained aloft for six minutes in a contest, has won a trip to Europe.

Six-year-old Archie Miglie walked in his sleep for more than half a mile on Brooklyn, N. Y., streets after 1 A. M., dressed in his night clothes.

Josephine Martin, Luna Park, N. Y., high school girl, is earning money as a trapeze performer to pay her way through law school.

Marie Snow, aged 14, won a spelling contest in Price county, Wis., defeating 175 competitors and spelling ten hours without misspelling a word.

Arthur Cantor, 9-year-old sixth-grade pupils of Boston, has had a volume of 500 poems published.

Carl Aitkinson of Caldwell, Kan., was born a great-uncle, his father being a great-grandfather.

John Martin, aged 11, of Chicago has helped to support his mother and two small sisters by working in a grocery store outside of school hours.

Martin Winona Smith of Winnipeg graduated from a technical high school at the age of 14, winning the governor-general's gold medal.

Campfire Girls of New York repair hundreds of broken and discarded toys which they give to poor children of the city.

Walter Johnson, Jr., young son of the famous baseball pitcher and manager of Washington, is recovering after having both his legs broken when run over by an automobile.

Princess Elizabeth, granddaughter of King George V, was given a real live pony as a present on her fourth birthday.

Josephine Hunter, aged 8, of San Diego, Cal., recently won a fancy diving contest in competition with women near Honolula.

Sally Lane, 14-year-old California girl, spends her summer vacations as a sailor on her father's whaling ship in the north Pacific ocean.

Eileen Simpson, aged 13, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was awarded a $1,000 prize for saving two children from drowning.

Mildred Pinkenfield, 9 weeks old, was declared by a jury of 15 doctors to be the most perfect baby in Greater New York.

Lawrence Koons of Des Moines piloted an airplane on a 300-mile trip at the age of 14.

SIDELIGHTS

Although New York City continues to be the home of more rubes than any other locality, its agricultural showing is not impressive. Official farm statistics of Manhattan Island give 5 mules, 8 horses, 17 cows, with 72 acres in cultivation, mostly potatoes.

Someone must have been humanizing the United States Shipping Board. That body has gravely ruled that babies born aboard its vessels may be carried to the end of the voyage without payment of fare.

Optimistic note from a newspaper of Victoria, B. C.: "The board was gratified to learn that receipts were 50 per cent greater than last year, and the hope was expressed that next year the cemetery will be self-supporting."

Harper's tells of a little girl sent to an institution for feeble-minded, but found merely "sub-normal" and returned home. Her little sister in a burst of confidence told a playmate: "Janie was sent away to be an idiot, but she couldn't pass and had to come back."

Book buyers will be pleased by the announcement that four of the largest publishers will cut prices in half. Some believe that this will reduce authors' royalties to an extent that will discourage the production of new books. Which may also be in the interest of the public.

Lower mathematics for school girls is recommended by the Kansas City Post, among the problems suggested being that of budgeting the income of a husband who earns about $25 a week. If one might be taught how to provide for groceries, clothes, rent, gasoline, cosmetics, haircuts and other necessaries out of such an income, with enough left over to pay the installments on the car and radio, it would be of more practical benefit than a knowledge of trigonometry, or even calculus.

An Arizona school advertised for a teacher who could "smoke, dance, sing, play the piano, look attractive and entertain nicely." The requirements were filled by a young woman who had been fired from another school for doing these things.

A negro Baptist preacher of Tampa, Fla., has taken drastic steps to reform conditions in his church, as indicated by the following published notice: "To whom it may concern: I, Rev. G. W. Code, pastor, have turned out all the members of the Friendship church for not attending as they ought to. I am going to start a revival meting and get a new congregation."

A nervous correspondent of the New York World demands that stamp moistening devices be installed in postoffices, to eliminate the "unsanitary and dangerous" habit of licking stamps with the tongue. It is unspeakably sad to think how our cemeteries are being filled with victims of the stamp-licking habit.

A noted educator suggests that we should "make our ignorance selective," meaning that inasmuch as no one can become informed about everything, we should deliberately select those subjects of which we are content to remain in ignorance. For most of us these would make a quiet lengthy list.

A young Hungarian society woman recently challenged to a duel a young man of her class who had mentioned her name lightly while intoxicated. When they met to fight with swords, he demanded that she strip to the waist, in accordance with the code. She refused; he laughed and walked away. More insulted than ever, the lady wept.

Annoyed by interference to traffic by slow-moving funerals, authorities at Campi Salentino, Italy, ordered them to proceed at a livelier pace. Jazz was substituted for the plaintive strains of Chopin and the trick was done, in spite of many protests.

A Britisher wants a course in laughter introduced into the schools. We used to get results in this line with no more equipment except a bent pin.

In a published "score card" for candidates, "intelligence" is given a weight of 10 out of 100 points. And some can't even pass that.

IMPROVING HIGHWAY NEAR SAN JOSE

Extensive construction is under way on U. S. 101, between San Francisco and San Jose, starting at a point just north of Mayfield. The road through Mayfield is being widened and repaved, and the reconstruction of the highway continues several miles south thereof. Traffic is being detoured on the old road for short distances, and along side of the construction the balance of the distance. Careful driving is urged. A part of the new road is on new alignment, and when completed will eliminate several bad curves, and decrease the mileage.

BETHEL FULL GOSPEL MISSION

The Lord Jesus has wonderful things in store for Daly City. All you have to do is come and get them. Just what are you seeking for, do you know? Are you looking for something to satisfy you; something to give you a lasting satisfaction and peace? Are you looking for a place to rest from all the worries of this world? Are you looking for riches? Are you looking for health? Just what are you looking for? I have to ask the question again, because I know that everyone who has not found Christ is looking for something, and they don't know what it is. I spent years searching for the same things and could not find them. But, praise God, I have them now. Jesus can give you rest. Jesus can give you satisfaction. Jesus can give you peace. Jesus can heal you, too, no matter where the sickness is. If your soul is sick, he can heal it. He healed the sick when He was on earth, and, praise the Lord, He is the same yesterday, today and forever. His word tells us that and we believe His word, from begining to end. If you are looking for something and don't know what it is or if you are looking for something that the world can not give you, come Sunday. Jesus can sopply all your needs. We are here to show you the way. Let us help you to find Him who satisfies all.

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 3 FRIDAY JULY 4, 1930 NUMBER 49

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

"Uncle Robert,when does your football team play?"

"Football team? What do you mean, my boy?"

"Why, I head father say that when you kicked off we'd be able to afford a big automobile."

Barker (at circus): "Flip, the great Mexican acrobat, will now make three complete somersaults in the air."

Spectator: "Huh; that ought to be easy for him."

Barker: "Why?"

Spectator: "Mister, those people are brought up on revolutions!"

LUMP COAL—for FURNACES. Hand picked.

Couldn't Be Guilty

Judge: Haven't you been before me before?"

Prisoner: "No, your honor, Oi never saw but one face that looked like yours, an' that was a photograph of an Irish king."

Judge: You're discharged. Call the next case."

Blonde: "I can't find a single pin. Where do they all go anyway?"

Matty: "It's hard to tell, because they're pointed in one direction and headed in another."

Jane: "I want some insect powder."

"Clerk: "Do you want to take it with you?"

Jane: "Of course not. I'll send the bugs to you and you can give it to them."

Kindling and Block Wood.

"Oh no!" said John bitterly; "there ain't any favorites in this family. Oh, no! If I bite my finger-nails, I get a rap over the knuckles, but if the baby eats his whole foot, they think it's cute."

Ring us up when you need Building Material.

Tom: "How are you getting along at home since your wife went away?"

Jim: "Fine! I have reached the highest point of afficiency. I can put on my socks from either end."
